The Arab and the Donkey.

An Arab came to the river side.
With a donkey bearing an obelisk;
But he would not try to ford the tide,
For he had too good an eye.

—Boston Globe.

So he camped all night by the river side And remained till the tide had ceased to swell, For he knew, should the donkey from life subside, He never would find his life.

—Salem Sunbeam.

When morning dawned and the tide was out,
The pair crossed over 'neath Allah's protection;
And the Arab was happy, we have no doubt,
For he had the best donkey in all that lot.

—Summerville Journal.

The donkey was seen by a Yankee man, Who raised his voice and loud did bellow,
"How much'll you take for that 'ere beast, In gold or silver or paper?"

—Detroit Free Press.

Then the Arab said to the Yankee quiz, This donkey's worth more than his face; His voice a mine of richness is,
And I raise his price every time he bleats.

—Colorado Springs Gazette.

Then the Yankee laughed a derisive smile,
And carelessly talked of blind stagers, Which angered the Arab and raised his rile, And his optics—they looked at.

—Denver Times.

The Late Outbreak at San Carlos, and What Came of It.

During the past week many of the weak-kneed of this place were greatly disturbed by a report that 1,000 Indians had put themselves outside of San Carlos Reservation with the avowed intention of making it hot for the whites.

'Tis true that there was a great commotion among the Indians, but it was not caused by a desire to go to war with the palefaces. A medicine man possessing the power to heal the sick and raise the dead, went to work to infuse life into Diablo, a chief who had crossed the shining river several months before the miraculous medicine man attempted to reanimate his lungs and give healthful current to his blood.

The report becoming current among the Indians that the medicine man had "struck oil" or in other words, that Diablo was himself again through his agency, the Indians determined to go and see Diablo, and congratulate the big medicine man upon being "up to snuff," whom they regarded as a bigger man than the Great Spirit or the President of the United States. They dropped out of sight in pairs and by dozens, and headed for Sublime Creek, where they understood the miracle had been performed. That was all there was of the reported outbreak. Having visited the place, and finding Diablo still as dead as a salted mackerel, the summit dwindled to a calm and the Indians faced in the direction of home, where they now are, so quiet that anywhere on the reservation you can hear a gun shot, and are none the better for their tramp or thrilling excitement.

—Silver Bell.

Form for Notice of Location.

The following form for notice of location has been gotten up by one of the leading members of the Salt Lake bar, who has also had many years experience as a miner. It is commendable for its brevity, and contains some features new to many. It will be well to clip it out and keep it for reference:

NOTICE OF LOCATION—BULLDOZER LODE.

The undersigned, having complied with the requirements of the mining act of Congress, approved May 10, 1872, and the local laws, customs and regulations of Arizona Mining District, have located 1,500 linear feet of the Bulldozer lode, bearing gold, silver and other metals, with 600 feet of surface ground, situated at the head of Burt Canyon, and about 400 feet northwest from the northeast end of Boomer ang lode, in Arizona Mining District, Summit County, Utah Territory. The said Bulldozer lode being more fully described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at post A, being the discovery; running northwesterly 100 feet to post B; thence 750 feet northeasterly to post C; thence 600 feet southeasterly to post D; thence 1,500 feet northeasterly to post E; thence 600 feet northeasterly to post F; thence 720 feet to post B.

Bull Fight in Colfax County.

Last Wednesday Mr. Frank C. Sherwin, Baron Gudenus and Count J.
Szechenyi started from Cimarron with a Courtland wagon, leading one horse, to visit the Van Crimmer and Vermojo Parks. Thursday night they returned on horseback with the wagon and harness. They had met with an adventure rare even in this land of adventure.
On their way home, while about 20 miles from Cimarron, they stopped to witness a beautiful bull-fight. The two bulls were unequally matched for weight but not for courage. Although the younger one was constantly being pushed back and often on his knees, he always faced his antagonist with blood in his eye, and by his superior activity and courage bid fair to come off victor.
So intent and interested did the gentlemen become in the result that they paid no attention to the increasing proximity of the conflict to their wagon, and when the stronger bull, suddenly obtaining an advantage, hurled his antagonist against the wagon, throwing its occupants far down the hill and smashing a front wheel, they for the first time began to realize that watching a bull-fight is almost as dangerous as it is interesting. Count Szechenyi says it was an experience one would not have in a lifetime, and that he would have made the trip to New Mexico for it alone.
